I recall a stretch where Denny Bockrath and I spent time giving the grandstands a face lift by nailing on new siding.

I also played a lot of slow pitch softball on that diamond as a third baseman for the Kalida K of C team.

Slow pitch softball was really big at the time. And, like the town baseball teams that would square off years before, it seemed most communities had a strong team comprised of the local talent. Ottawa Oil was one of the strongest, with Steve Meyer, the Schumaker brothers, and I believe the Ruhe brothers, too. The Leipsic Eagles sponsored a really good team and the Mac & Rita's club with all players was impressive. So they started a Friday Night League, and the games were played at Holy Name Ballpark. The ball park was showing its age, though. A big concern (and a major cost) was the lights, and as I took my place at third base one Friday night

those good Miller City ball

I noticed that, while several stanchions still lit the rest of the field, the bank of lights just over my right shoulder was completely out, leaving my area in a bit of a shadowy gloom.

That became an issue midway through the game when the batter teed off on a pitch and ripped it right at me. All I remember is throwing my glove up in front of my face as a blur came at me. The ball hit my glove, glanced up and off my head and shot a good 15 to 20 feet straight up in the air. Dazed but unharmed I looked up, spotted the ball and caught it as it came down.

My teammates thought it a bit funny. I was just glad I still had a mouthful of teeth, and no tattoo saying Rawlings permanently imprinted on my forehead. In the annals of Holy Name Ballpark, though, I am but a bit player compared to some of the talent that has graced that field. (Although my dad — gotta love his optimism — at times felt I could be the first American Pope, then the next great shortstop for the Cleveland Indians.) "Wid" Stechschulte, a right-handed pitcher who, when needed, would switch around and throw left-handed, drew the attention of major league scouts in high school, college, and in helping the Kalida Merchants win the 1950 Ohio state tile of the National Baseball Congress (NBC) tournament. - Johnny Geckle would go on to be inducted into the American Softball Association Hall of Fame after helping Lima Steele's to some of their 11 ASA Super Division national championships. The story goes that he hit the longest home run by a high school player at Holy Name Ballpark. I'm not sure if it onehopped the elementary school of hit it on the fly, but to do either it would have had to travel well over 400 feet.

 Chad Ehrnsberger, the only player in PCL history to be first-team all-league as a freshman, sophomore junior and senior, played three seasons for Ohio State and was a five-time all-star in the minor leagues.

 Ross Guisinger was a two-time all-Ohioan and the PCL's only three-time Player of the Year. And Gene Stechschulte — both of them. Gene Stechschulte Sr. was my ACME coach one summer. Best coach I ever had, and a finer human being. His son Gene Jr., or Geno, had a great prep career at Kalida and was an All-American shortstop (and two-time Academic All-American) for Ashland University. Scouts liked the velocity of his throws so much he was drafted as a pitcher by the St. Louis Cardinals. He eventually reached the majors and in an April 2001 game against Arizona, with the Cards getting pummeled 15-1, he was sent into the game. In his first major league at-bat, he belted the very first pitch he saw for a two-run home run, becoming only the 16th player in Major League history — and possibly the only pitcher — to achieve that feat. Gene Stechschulte Jr.

just completed his tenth season as Ohio Northern's head baseball coach, and is already the second winningest coach in program history (208-153). Gene's son Andrew was an allleague catcher for Findlay High this spring.

Joe Recker, a member of the Holy Name Ballpark Committee, focused in on that kind of generation to generation continuity in his opening remarks at Monday's ground breaking. His grandfather had been one of the key figures in the early years of Holy Name Ballpark and was able to watch as his sons and grandsons benefit from the facility as well. And as the backhoes and heavy equipment began tearing into the turf of Holy Name Ballpark, the message came through loud and clear that they were not replacing the history and tradition of the iconic facility, but adding another chapter of it for grandfathers and sons and grandsons to come. I know my two cents aren't worth a plug nickel, especially in these inflated times. I haven't put in the time and effort into this project that many, many others have. But when I watched the video and scanned the plans for this immense undertaking, I had an idea.

In the architect's plans, there will eventually be a brick circle in front of the rebuilt Ballpark, and in the circle will be a statue of a wildcat. I know that's the school mascot. But for all that the Ballpark has meant to so many fledgling ball players over the years, I felt a more appropriate piece might be a statue of a boy, 10 may 12 years old, ball cap pulled snugly on his head, a baseball bat on his shoulder, a glove hanging from the end of the bat. And I'd have him facing the ball park, not away from it, like he's heading inside to start making his own memories on this field of dreams.

rienced a serious dropoff in its usual number of volunteers for a variety of reasons, some of them remaining related to the pandemic. "I think a lot of people were still scared of COVID," Lippert said. "With spectators, that's scaring them, too. You're around all these people now. You don't know. I've seen some players have masks on. A lot of the Asians are still wearing masks."
